Tripadvisor, USA TODAY, and The Weather Channel offer premium subscription bundles to save consumers time and money

The deal gives consumers the option to pair The Weather Channel Premium Pro digital subscription² with Tripadvisor Plus or with USA TODAY's Digital All-Access plan and manage both subscriptions in one place. From planning a vacation to catching up on the latest headlines to checking the weather conditions, consumers can subscribe to the information they want on The Weather Channel website while saving both time and money.

"Consumers are looking for convenience and ease of use when it comes to managing their subscriptions. By joining forces with Tripadvisor and USA TODAY, subscribers can now manage both subscriptions on weather.com," noted Sheri Bachstein, CEO of The Weather Company, an IBM Business. "Delivering timely and accurate weather data that helps make life easier is our goal. Offering the bundled subscriptions is another way that we can provide our users with enhanced value to help them live their best lives."

Weather impacts everyone, everywhere, every day. Access to timely forecasts allows people to make more informed decisions and can improve their well-being – whether by taking precautions before a storm or packing appropriately for summer vacation. According to a recent IBM survey,³ close to 75 percent of respondents said that they begin checking the weather at least two weeks prior to departing on their trip and more than half check the weather more often while traveling. The Weather Channel Premium Pro subscribers gain access to deeper weather insights, such as 72-hour future radar and eight days of hourly forecasts, all in an ad-free environment.

The Tripadvisor Plus subscription provides members-only prices and perks on 100,000 hotels worldwide, savings on nearly 300,000 bookable experiences, access to members-only perks from Tripadvisor travel partners, and more. With burgeoning consumer demand for epic getaways and weather patterns as unpredictable as ever impacting vacations, the subscription package featuring Tripadvisor[®] Plus from the world's largest travel guidance platform, and The Weather Channel, the world's most accurate forecaster overall¹, is designed to enhance the travel experience for users of both services in the United States.

"In launching Tripadvisor Plus last year, we entered the travel subscription business to help our community get the most out of their trips. Our driving force is to help people become better travelers – to be the ultimate resource for trip planning, inclusive of relevant guidance and deals," said Brad Soroca, VP, Business Development, Tripadvisor. "Travel and weather go hand-in-hand. With the continued evolution of travel subscription services, it was the perfect opportunity for two leading brands in adjacent spaces to join together to bring incredible service and value to travelers."

USA TODAY's Digital All-Access plan delivers full access to subscriber-only content, exclusive subscriber newsletters, the eNewspaper, a digital replica of the print edition, and exclusive access to conversations with the newsroom.
